Racing to Excellence 2016

LEXINGTON, KY

39th Annual Conference

November 9th – 12th

Downtown Hilton Hotel

Lexington, Kentucky

Hello TED Friends,

Welcome to the Bluegrass State! It is an honor to be hosting TED members and conference attendees who are the leaders in special education teacher education. This booklet contains the conference schedule-at-a-glance; the meeting schedule; and the session titles, presenters, times, and rooms. The full program is posted on the TED website and includes an abstract for each session. We hope you take advantage of all that the conference and Lexington have to offer. Check your conference bags for information about tours of Lexington, horse farms, distilleries, and other great places to visit. Also, look for the booklet, Beyond Grits, to locate local restaurants in and near downtown Lexington. If our team of amazing volunteers can assist with anything to make your stay more enjoyable, please do not hesitate to ask.

Again, we wish you a very warm welcome to Lexington as we Race to Excellence in the Bluegrass!

Sincerely, LEXINGTON, KY
Belva and Margaret

Welcome to Lexington! We are delighted to have you participate in the 39th Annual TED conference. It gives me great pleasure to extend a warm 'bluegrass' welcome on behalf of the UK College of Education. Great things happen when there is a gathering of great minds. This conference is an exciting opportunity to reflect upon the current status and future of education for individuals with exceptionalities. Historically, the annual TED conferences have been outstanding examples of TED's dedication to advance educational practices for children with exceptionalities through research, practice, and advocacy. This year's conference theme, "Racing to Excellence," truly represents the strong commitment to enhancing the quality of education and services to children and adults with exceptionalities in this global and technologically advanced society.

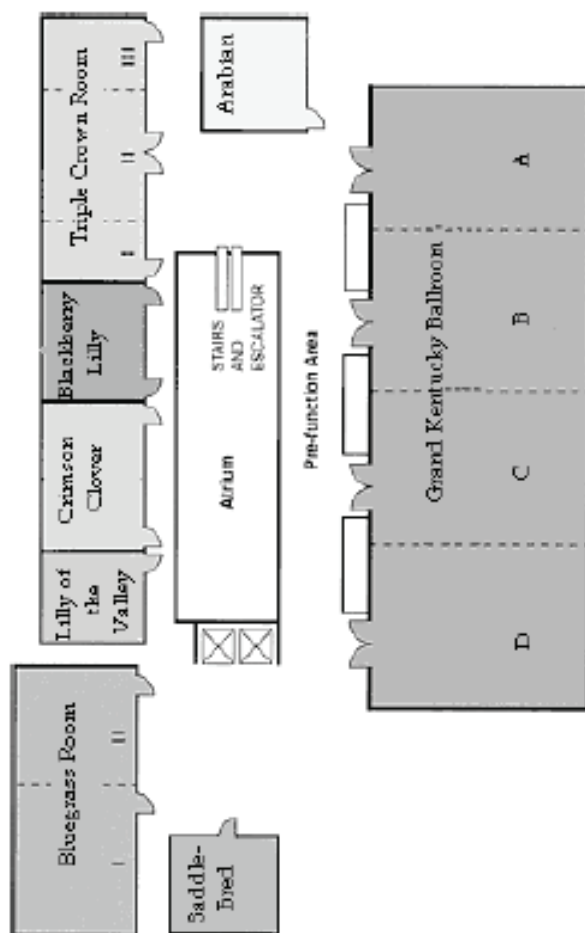

While you are here, I invite you to enjoy all Lexington has to offer, as well as your time with colleagues, collaborators, and friends.

Mary John O'Hair, Ed.D.

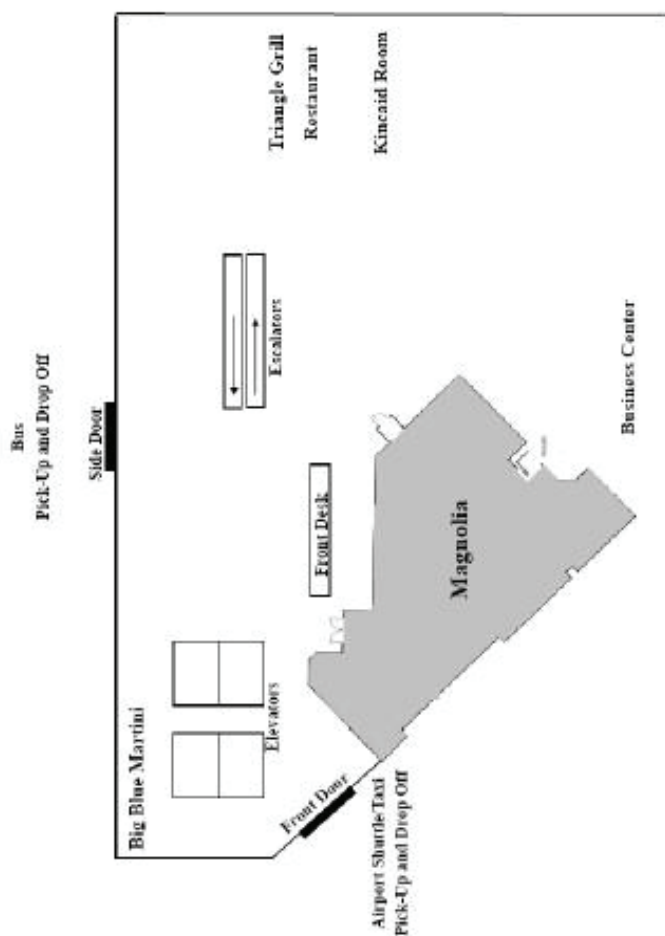

Dean and Professor, UK College of Education

A Retrospective Look at how Technology has Shaped Teacher Education

Technology has been an important part of teacher education, within and outside of special education, for over four decades. In this presentation, Dr. Hasselbring will review important milestones and significant technological advances that have helped to shape teacher education right up to today. From Phil Cartwright's Care project to Lisa Dieker's TeachLivE, this session will bring to light the important contribution of technology for teacher education in the field of special education.

About Ted: Over the past thirty years, Dr. Ted S. Hasselbring has conducted research on the use of technology for enhancing learning in students with mild disabilities and those who are at-risk of school failure. Dr. Hasselbring began his career in higher education in 1977 as an Assistant Professor at North Carolina State University. Prior to joining the faculty of NCSU he was a special education teacher in New York. In 1982, Dr. Hasselbring joined the faculty of Peabody College of Vanderbilt University where for eighteen years he served as the Co-Director of the Learning Technology Center and conducted research on using technology for providing instruction in reading and mathematics.

This research resulted in several widely used computer-intervention programs for struggling learners, these include READ 180, FASTT Math, and Simon SIO. In 2000, Dr. Hasselbring left Vanderbilt and joined the faculty of the University of Kentucky as the William T. Brian Professor and Endowed Chair in Special Education Technology. While at Kentucky he also served as the Executive Director of the National Assistive Technology Research Institute. In 2006, Dr. Hasselbring returned to Vanderbilt to resume his research and development activities in computer intervention.

YOU CAN'T RACE STUCK IN NEUTRAL:

OBSTACLES AND STRATEGIES FOR GETTING SPECIAL EDUCATION IN GEAR

Teaching students with disabilities is a race against the clock. If not taught more in less time, they fall farther behind their peers without disabilities each year. While special education can rightfully be proud of many accomplishments, students with disabilities continue to struggle in school and in life. This presentation will identify several ideological beliefs and faulty notions about teaching and learning that neutralize the potential effectiveness of special education, propose reasons for the persistence of those beliefs and the misguided practices they promote, and suggest several strategies special educators can implement to improve outcomes for their students.

About Bill: William L. Heward, Ed.D., BCBA-D, is Professor Emeritus in the College of Education and Human Ecology at The Ohio State University where he helped trained special education teachers for 30 years. Bill has been a Senior Fulbright Scholar in Portugal, a Visiting Scholar at the National Institute of Education in Singapore, a Visiting Professor of Psychology at Keio University in Tokyo and the University of São Paulo, and has given lectures and workshops in 21 other countries. He has published more than 100 journal articles and book chapters and nine books. His texts Exceptional Children: An Introduction to Special Education (11th ed., 2017, with Sheila Alber-Morgan and Moira Konrad) and Applied Behavior Analysis (2nd ed., 2007, co-authored with John Cooper and Tim Heron) have been translated into several foreign languages. Awards recognizing Dr. Heward's contributions to education and behavior analysis include the Fred S. Keller Behavioral Education Award from the American Psychological Association's Division 25 and the Ellen P. Reese Award for Communication of Behavioral Concepts from the Cambridge Center for Behavioral Studies. A Past President and Fellow of the Association for Behavior Analysis International, Bill's research interests include "low-tech" methods for increasing the effectiveness of group instruction in inclusive classrooms and adaptations of curriculum and instruction that promote the generalization and maintenance of newly learned knowledge and skills.

Racing to the Year 2081 in Teacher Preparation: A New Breed of Learning and Learners

A new breed of learners are emerging being given names such as multi-media, multi-taskers, generation Y (or why?), generation Z, millennials, or even “screenagers”. For this future generation of learners and those entrusted to teach them how are we preparing our teachers for the future of technology that will impact their everyday life and future jobs? How do we prepare teachers who consider what we see as innovative as simply “stuff”? This presentation will provide a glimpse into the future use of evolving technologies for student learning and teacher preparation. The session will emphasize specifically the need to produce a new breed of teachers to produce new learners with a more individualized, personalized, and interdisciplinary approach in the use of technology as a tool not a solution. Come prepared to ponder what thoroughbred we want to be producing in the future in teacher education and special education.

About Lisa: Dr. Lisa Dieker is a Pegasus Professor and Lockheed Martin Eminent Scholar Chair at the University of Central Florida. She received her undergraduate and master's degree from Eastern Illinois University and her Ph.D. from the University of Illinois. Her primary area of research focuses on collaboration between general and special education with a specific interest in the unique opportunities that exist in for students in urban and rural settings. She also has a passion for how technology and simulators, TeachLivE™, can be used to impact teacher preparation and student learning.

FRIDAY

Morning 2016 TED Keynote Session

Friday, November 11th

9:00 AM Grand Kentucky Ballroom A & B

Jane West

Translating our Race to Excellence into Advocacy for Education Policy that Serves ALL Students

The historic election of November 8 will have significant implications for education policy and how we structure our advocacy work. This session will provide a primer on possible policy activity before the end of 2016 and a preview of what and who is in the works for the 115th Congress and the Clinton or Trump Administration. It will offer practical recommendations for flexing your advocacy muscles and sharing the excellence of your work in a way that will be compelling for policy makers.

About Jane: A former teacher and education administrator, Dr. Jane West is visiting professor at the University of Maryland and policy advisor to several national education organizations, including the American Association of Colleges for Teacher Education (<http://aacte.org/>), the National Network of State Teacher of the Year (<http://www.nnstoy.org/>), the Higher Education Consortium for Special Education (<http://www.hecse.net/>) and the Teacher Education Division of the Council for Exceptional Children (<http://www.tedcec.org/>). For 8 years she led AACTE's advocacy and policy work as Senior Vice President. In the mid 1980's she worked as senior education advisor on the United States Senate Committee on Health, Education, Labor and Pensions where she led the national effort to craft multiple federal education statutes. Focusing on bringing the voice of expert education practitioners into the national policy dialogue, West supports professionals – teacher educators, expert teachers, researchers, principals, doctoral students and others -- in engaging in the policy making process by honing their message, supporting it with evidence, engaging at the right time during the process and building effective political alliances. With a focus on teaching quality, West has led the effort to build an influential100 organization coalition – the Coalition for Teaching Quality

(<http://coalitionforteachingquality.org/main/>)– to advocate for a professional continuum for teaching and education leadership with a focus on a diverse workforce and bringing the most accomplished educators to the students with greatest need. She has organized multiple briefings for policy makers and routinely consults with elected officials to develop education policy which will serve the highest need students. West contributed to multiple legislative provisions in the new federal education law -- the Every Student Succeeds Act -- which promote teacher leadership and comprehensive educator preparation as strategies to address critical teacher shortages, teacher recruitment and teacher retention challenges, particularly for diverse student populations and high need schools. Her scholarship focuses on analyzing education policy and effective strategies for professionals to ensure that their expert practice and scholarship influence national education policy. As co-editor of a recent special issue of Teacher Education for Special Education, she has articulated a powerful analysis of effective advocacy for educators

(<http://tes.sagepub.com/site/misc/Index/Podcasts.xhtml>). Her extensive publications and national keynote lectures bring education policy to life for teachers and researchers alike. West has served on the faculties of the University of San Francisco, Johns Hopkins University and Virginia Commonwealth University. She has been a special education teacher and administrator and edited two books about the implementation of the Americans with Disabilities Act, a law she participated in crafting. West holds a BA from the University of California at Santa Barbara, an MA from Teachers College, Columbia University and a Ph.D. in special education from the University of Maryland.
