Candidate Statement:

TED has been instrumental in my growth as a researcher and teacher educator. I want to join the board to give back to the organization and expand the professional growth I have experienced to others in the TED membership. TED has incredible expertise and skill to provide its members. I hope to better communicate those strengths to our current members and draw in more members to experience the professional growth so many of us have experienced. I believe I bring strong organization and communication skills and depth and breadth of experience working in service organizations.

As Member-at-Large for the Publications & Communications Committee, these skills and experiences will be highly valuable. This role requires someone with the organizational skills to oversee nominations and voting for the TESE publication award, coordinating social media and communication strategy with the TED presidential line, and collaborating with TESE editors on journal strategy and outreach. I have had some experience with each of these responsibilities for other organizations. As a member of the CEC's Yes, I Can committee, I was involved with organizing the nomination, review, and voting process for an international award. In my role for the South Carolina chapter of CEC, I coordinated social media strategy, bolstered our web presence, and improved communication with members. As a blogger for CEC's Reality 101 blog, I coordinated with editors on communication and outreach strategy.

Based on these experiences, I know I have the organization skills, communication skills, and knowledge to be successful as Member-at-Large for the Publications & Communications Committee.
